

CITY REPORTS

Report of the City Physician.
The following report of the City Physician, Dr. J. H. Smith, is respectfully submitted:
The health of the city during the past year has been generally good, but there has been a considerable amount of sickness, particularly among the poor. The most common diseases have been influenza, pneumonia, and smallpox. The mortality has been unusually high, particularly among the children. The cause of this is believed to be the lack of proper sanitation and the prevalence of poverty. It is recommended that the city authorities should take steps to improve the sanitary conditions and provide for the poor. This could be done by building more public houses, improving the drainage system, and providing for the burial of the dead. It is also recommended that the city should provide for the education of the children, particularly those who are poor. This could be done by building more schools and providing for the employment of the children. It is believed that these steps would greatly improve the health of the city and reduce the mortality.
